

It is the american dream to own a business and be successful. To often the big conglomerates cry like babies to the government, it is ridiculous and not what america is all about. Instead of a company changing focus and changing with the time they wimper and cry that someone is stealing market share, I own a business and I have to say if you cannot keep up with the times you should not be in business. Business is tough change for what the consumers want to go out of business, life it tough! XM is here to stay, I hope we get more localize content.

Good Day!
